Delivering continuity of care for 22 years

Home parenteral nutrition (HPN) is a life-changing therapy for patients who cannot meet their nutritional requirements by enteral intake, and who are able to appropriately receive therapy outside of hospital.¹

Fresenius Kabi's comprehensive service provides continuity of care from a hospital to a home setting, to help ensure that patients continue to receive the life-sustaining therapy and support they need. HPN gives patients a greater level of independence and reduces the financial burden of in-hospital care.²
